The Business Problem

We know engaged employees who wholeheartedly give discretionary effort, help the organization succeed. But traditional employee engagement surveys only measure group engagement issues, ignoring the individual data that is crucial to engagement and assuming that only managers are responsible for employee engagement outcomes. This approach is doomed to fail because engagement is a shared responsibility between the employee and the organization.

Engagement is a Shared Responsibility

Now you can measure the intrinsic behavioural factors that drive individual engagement for each employee.

- Place employees in roles that are engaging
- Identify gaps between important employee expectations, supporting behaviours and current fulfilment levels
- Facilitate the essential communication between an employee and their manager
- Foster a shared responsibility for engagement
- Create a culture of engagement and high performance

Align employee Intrinsic factors with organizational Extrinsic factors to maximize engagement.
